

Austin Events 2018 Calendar

Updates for Awesome People Like You!

Dear My Favorite Subscriber,

I hope the new year is treating you well.

Because, as an "Austin Events 2018" wall calendar owner, you deserve it! *

My resolution is: "Stop trying to be as awesome as my newsletter subscriber." Because, like losing 1,000 pounds, it's just not possible.

No doubt you have completed all your New Year's resolutions and are already eagerly awaiting the next time you get to show off your productive prowess.

I'm sure the world will very soon have some great, impossible need that you will be able to tackle without breaking a sweat.

In the meantime, might I suggest taking it easy and relishing your good looks, affability, and fantastic intuition. Everyone keeps talking about them. They really are amazing.

Here's your January and February updates. (Only a few this time!)

You are the best!
Mike

JANUARY 2018 - WALL CALENDAR UPDATES

Organizers of the Austin Gorilla Run have decided not to host the 5K in 2018 based on reduced participation. They will host a different event to raise funds to help protect mountain gorillas. Check the website for more info.

If you're on the hunt for some new-to-you clothing or wares, head over to the Palmer Events Center for the City-Wide Garage Sale, Jan. 20-21.

Do you like yoga? Do you love hiking? How about both? Join Yoga Hike for their Full Moon Yoga Hike and Meditation at the Wild Basin Wilderness Preserve, Jan. 31.

FEBRUARY 2018 - WALL CALENDAR UPDATES

Celebrate the Year of the Dog at the Chinatown Center on Sunday, Feb. 25. Enjoy performances, family-friendly activities, and yummy food while honoring the Chinese New Year.

Spend some quality time with your pooch at the ABGB for their Mardi Gras Dog Parade, Feb. 25. All pups dressed in costume can "bark for beads." There will be King Cake, live music, and Cajun-inspired food. Laissez les bon temp rouler!

If you're an oyster connoisseur, this is the fest for you. The Austin Oyster Festival will take place at the Seaholm Power Plant on Feb. 24.
