Updates for Awesome People Like You!

Dear My Favorite Subscriber,

I tried putting some candy in this email for you, but I think all I did was mess up my usb port. Ugh. I'm going to keep looking into what the heck is going on here, so stay tuned.

I'm sure you open these emails prepared with your own candy, so hopefully it's not too big a deal.

You always seem to know what's needed.

What's needed!

It's March. What most people need is to GET READY, because (unlike you who never gets overwhelmed) they are about to be overwhelmed with too many choices for fun in the ATX.

So while you eat the candy you had prepared ahead of time for the reading of this email, others are going to totally freak out that the most festively eventful time of year is just about upon us.

As a side note, which is totally unnecessary but my marketing team begged me to mention: There's a very much dwindling supply of calendars out there, and you should tell your friends who are slower than you (like we all are) that they need to get theirs ASAP.

Most stores are sold out of the Austin Events 2020 Wall Calendar. Please help your slow friends by letting them know to get on this very important life-changing task so they can have at least a small chance at being as plugged in and as awesome as you.

Of course, you and I know that's not true. Because they will not have any chance at being as awesome as you.

But hey, hope feels good right?

You are a public servant, and I thank you. So will your friends.

Here's a map of where there might be calendars, but probably not so call them first!

They are still available for sale online. (Check out our 5-star rating!)

Here are your event updates for March and April!

You are the best!
